

We want the write via the M port to take priority over the write via the E port in order to store the value read from memory into %rsp.